tourist traffic. An assured net income of $100,000 a year, or more, will carry the capital cost of any highway system required to make Canadian roads easily and safely available to the motorists of the continent.

How many of the two hundred and seventy million dollars, or more, due to be left in Canada by tourists this summer will go into the cash drawers and pockets of people in Edmonton and Jasper will depend very largely on whether the Jasper highway is by that time a fact or only the pretence it always has been.

THE BROKEN STAFF OF PEACE

This week's deliberations at the League of Nations Assembly, notwithstanding they will have failed to excite in advance the animated attention of mankind. Saddened to despair by the League's continued failure to secure peace, most people dare not believe that the present conference will play Europe's unswerving preparation for war. This moral despair and fearful belief in approaching catastrophe, is one of the elements of danger in the world situation.
There is justification for this collapse in ideals in the new general conviction that the Covenant is no longer the arbiter of Europe's destiny. The nations that are fostering war, for the most part, beyond the jurisdiction of the League. Germany and Japan have renounced the obligations of membership in the world community while still under her sanction by belonging to assembly where principles have been systematically destroyed. Yet it is these nations that imperil the peace of the world.
Hitters through the League's hands, land-hunger, for example, by pillaging Eastern Europe will hang like a thunderbolt over the conference, a symbol of the barren failure of its negotiations.

The ideal of collective security has perished.
The menace of unrestrained aggression has been restored. In such a situation, the only palliative will avail to restore the dimmed splendour of Geneva. European statesmen have been the victims of a general confusion of purging the Covenant of its more unwholesome defects. They might be better advised to use the opportunity to present to bind all the realising force of the League. They are in compact and explicit alliance, for a divided democracy is poorly situated to protect itself against the growing forces of despotism.

is not long but the crop is about as sure as the country affords.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The convent building at the mission is well advanced.

F. Walker, of Agriola, was in town Friday.

Rev. N. Jansen preached in the Presbyterian church this morning and Rev. A.

Forbes in the evening.

G. Blake received a barrel of fall wheat from Ontario this morning and will deliver it on Horse Hill, about the middle of August. It sprouted last year and ripened early this fall, giving a splendid crop and lots of straw. This is an interesting experiment and proved that fall wheat can be successfully grown here.

Geo. Wilkins and W. Oliver arrived in town today from their mine miles in the mountains.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

The first train of immigrants was taking for a thirty year journey in Strathcona.

anniversary of his elevation to the priesthood.

Montreal—The "Y-Y" trans-Atlantic flight of Capt. René Paré, began in an attempt to take off on a non-stop flight to Navy. The radio operator and mechanic perished. French and British planes in the air navy leaped to safety before the plane burst into flames.

Montreal—Four hundred dead, 5,000 injured, and property damage running from $50,000.00

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

The views expressed by Mr. J. S. Cowper in this column are his own personal views, and are not necessarily those held by The Edmonton Bulletin.—EDITOR.

I've no intention of boring or aggravating the customers by tales of the recent sea-trip which filled the time-lapses of this column.
The trip satisfied for a year or two the sea-nostalgia which now and again afflicts your columnist.
It freshens up the daily contribution. It will have achieved a good end, without any desecration of the daily joys and tribulations of the trip.

There was one thrilling half hour that will bear record. I had anchored the little craft off Paradise Island where we went ashore for a few hours. The crew was instructed to lower life boats—each to carry 300 feet of line —as a 12 foot line was coming in, and the waters were ripped by tidal currents. The crew, I should have taken his assurance, without confirmation, that lots of chain had been paid out.

There the little craft rode safely at anchor as we left. A couple of hours later, when we returned from a tramp across the island, it was nowhere to be seen. Victims of destruction remains. The place is honey-combed with tidal rapids.
There is a narrow passage, a land bridge, more at home boxing a plug-jug than boxing the compass. I should have taken his assurance, without confirmation, that lots of chain had
been paid out.

been paid out.

Danny, who had been left behind on the rocks to pray, said his own safe return, "You must have been on the land, I am told, to be grounded on the ledge, with a receding tide, we'd have been helpless to budge her seven feet. She'd have been on the ledge, with a sloping ledge, six feet above the water at low tide. That was the narrowest shave of the trip.

And here's an Albanian note. A young missionary, obedient to the law that distant fields of grain are sacred, had been told to become a shepherd in Alberta. Night after night he had read "Ranch Talks" and listened to the stories of the life of the cowboy. He had been told that the life of the cowboy was a life of adventure and playing jokes as they sang "Home on the Range" and "Gilt Angus, Little Dipper."

The little boy, who had been told that the range appeared to him better than hauling in fish. So he sold his fish-boat for ten dollars and a helpful friend, and with ten dollars he had been told that the life of the cowboy was a life of adventure and playing jokes as they sang "Home on the Range" and "Gilt Angus, Little Dipper."

I count it one of the misfortunes of the trip that we arrived just a few hours too late to see the place in all the glory of a cowpuncher's dance.

Don't make any wisecracks about the romantic youth, ambitious to become valet to a herd of steers. Study the life of a cowboy in a night club before he found fortune as a cron-ey. We yet may all pay tribute to that suit of black and white, and the life of the cowboy the guitar, and the hearkening to the call of Fortune.

The strangest economic puzzle of the trip, whose implications are worth pondering upon, is that of three other fishermen who have quit the life of the fisherman. They are now on the hoof or even raise Cain in the hearts of music-lovers in crowd cronies. They have been told that the life of the cowboy was a life of adventure and playing jokes as they sang "Home on the Range" and "Gilt Angus, Little Dipper."

Yet, such is the pervasiveness of life under the stars, that the life of the fisherman is now richly for the useless work they were engaged upon, than ever they were paid for the useful work of harvesting the food wealth of the sea.

Their work is a curious one. These three men, sturdy chaps of Scandinavian origin, have been told that the life of the cowboy was a life of adventure and playing jokes as they
sang "Home on the Range" and "Gilt Angus, Little Dipper."

They are not mining a useful mineral like copper, or iron, or asbestos. They are mining for one of the rarer minerals, for which only demand, there is no economic use. It cannot be used for making hard alloys of steel like molybdenum, or chromium or vanadium. It has no scientific uses like radium, platinum, iridium, tungsten, tellurium and titanium. The useless metal these men are mining is known as aurum.
They are an untrained gang of men, but they are mining for a metal that is worth more than any other metal in the world.

When they get the aurum out of the earth, it is sent to a government office and refined.
It is cast into bars, and these bars of aurum are stored in vaults deep in the ground, protected by guns and guards, time clocks and photoelectric cells which give warning of the approach of any unauthorized person. They are

Your Child's Thinking

And Emotion

By DOCTOR FRANK MCCOY

It amuses me to read so much writing that is being written on the changes and revolutionizing children intellectually and emotionally. The school children of today, who comprise the rising generation, are no superior in many ways to their parents. I often wonder if the criticism leveled at flaming youth is really not a kind of jealousy or envy.

It seems to me that most of those who criticize the rapid changes in our youth are about twelve years old themselves, mentally and emotionally. There is no question but that the children of today, who are properly educated, are a great deal more advanced than were children of the same age in 1900. I am not referring to the occasional prodigy.

My impartial observation is that the high school student who will graduate this coming year has a mind that is far more advanced richer than were the minds of his parents at the same age. It is unfair to compare the mind of the high school student with the mind of his parent at the present time, inasmuch as the parent has had the benefit of experience. It is

Alcazar! Spanish War Horror

The month-old siege of the Alcazar, historic fortress was approaching an end with the dynamiting of the famous facade. Of the 1,700 beleaguered

CUBAN NEGRO CONFESES IN HAVANA BLAST

Man Involves Group Of Spaniards As Explosion Authors

HAVANA, Sept. 22.—A Cuban negro, responsible source said yesterday, confessed his own participation in the explosion which leveled the Alcazar in Havana. He was reported to have made the statement after about 34 hours of continuous questioning by police. A white man—another Cuban—was questioned also and was reported to have admitted his part in the dynamiting.

Another development which brought the Spanish racial theory to the fore was an informal statement by a police official in the city who said the investigation was "progressing" and that "we are making more arrests right along, especially among Spanish."

The negro was said to have related a complicated story of his part in the explosion, which he said was between Cuban and Spanish radicals, Cuban terrorists and Spanish radicals.

Artillerymen Drive Hapless Refugees Far Underground

By JAMES C. OLDFIELD
Copyright, 1936, The Associated Press

TOLEDO, Spain, Sept. 22.—Socialist artillerymen, dropping a quickened barrage into the ruined Alcazar, drove dogged Fascists completely underground today after the last fortress tower crumbled in a rain of shells.

This correspondent watched three successive fire which cascaded southeast toward—last of four at the center of the historic Alcazar square in the middle and sent it crashing down.

The shells tore apart the masonry. A cloud of thick black smoke enveloped the tower. The ruins of the fortress, perched precariously on wall segments which stood alone after days of bombardment, scrambled into subterranean caverns in a rain of debris.

For the first time in nearly 24 hours, the dark of Fascist machine guns from improvised positions along the ruins was silenced. Surrounding the fortress, a line of government militiamen waited for the order which would send them charging into the battered edifice for a final assault.

Major Emilio Torres, commander of the government attackers, delayed the advance after Gen. Jose Azaña, supreme military leader of all Spanish forces, in control Spain, left Toledo hurriedly for the Talavera battle sector.

HILL LIBRARIAN HERE, RETIRES, PLANNING BOOK

Will Live in Victoria—To Write Story of Early Edmonton

Ending an association of 34 years with the Edmonton public library, F. L. Hill, city librarian, who was primarily responsible for the growth of the public library movement in Alberta, resigned today. He plans to live in Victoria, B.C., where the milder climate will be more congenial to his health.

Ever since his youth, Hill has been devoted to the ideal of public libraries. He was a member for several years of the Quebec, Ontario, library board and later became its secretary. In 1907 he came to Edmonton. He was immediately made the director of a public library to serve the needs of the growing community. He was succeeded by John Clark, Albert Baker, and Mr. Hill was appointed and by 1929 had secured sufficient funds from the Carnegie Institute to begin the construction of the library.

When the distinguished bookman was appointed school inspector for the district of Strathcona, he resolved to do for Calgary. After strenuous campaign, a library was begun in 1932 by the city of Strathcona, which had a grant of $35,000 made by the city.

At the same time Edmonton formed its library and Mr. Hill was appointed head of the new library. For the last five years he has acted as chief public librarian for Edmonton.

During his tenure of office the number of books in the library has increased from 10,000 to 100,000. He has earned the enviable distinction of having one of the ablest libraries in the Dominion.

Expressing his appreciation of the help and cooperation he always received, the Librarian said: "I have ever received very loyal support from the staff, and I would like to mention, in particular, the untiring support accorded me by the daily press. But of these factors, the most important in contributing to the success of the library I have every confidence that the chief members of the staff, having been connected with the library since its beginning, are in a position to carry on successfully the work which has been established during the past 34 years."

Porters Strike Comes Near To Alpine Failure

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 22.—A strike of 37 native porters aiding an Anglo-American group to climb Mount Annapurna halted the successful scaling of the 26,661-foot peak.

The porters failed miserably, negotiating one of us to carry 250-pound loads on the last lap over intensely slippery ice tracks, said Khetlar was decorated in 1935 by a British member of the expedition which reached the summit of the Himalayan mountain Sept. 11.

The group required 21 days to reach the base camp 14,000 feet high. Difficulties of travel increased with the base camp which had to be moved from its original position to a new one, where the native porters, who remained loyal to the expedition, died on his return to the base camp.

He was believed to have succumbed to the strenuous exertion of carrying 250-pound loads on the last lap over intensely slippery ice tracks, said Khetlar was decorated in 1935 by a British member of the expedition which reached the summit of the Himalayan mountain Sept. 11.
